Court Of Honor To Be Staged At Gold Cliff; Motorcade Planned Wednesday

Initiating the annual campaign to enroll sustaining members for the Boy Scout movement in the Pickaway district, Scouters and friends of scouting met Tuesday at an "early bird breakfast" in the American hotel coffee shop, then began solicitations to secure the $600 goal.

Leaders hope to complete a speedy and successful campaign, the third conducted.

Charles M. Riggs, active volunteer Scoutmaster of Columbus, addressed the group, pointing out the continued need of scouting. Citing examples from a daily newspaper, he emphasized how youth training influenced the lives of various individuals. Mr. Riggs is the father of an Eagle Scout. He pointed out the value of scouting in his own home.

Mr. Riggs was introduced by James I. Smith, Jr., Pickaway district chairman. Both men are members of the executive board of the Central Ohio Area Council.

Herman Hill Chairman

Chairman of this year's campaign is Herman Hill, who instructed the volunteer workers. Rotarians and Kiwanians are supplementing troop committeemen and Scout fathers in assisting in the drive.

Scout officials expressed satisfaction with the progress of Scout work in Circleville and the Pickaway district and optimism concerning the campaign. Recent growth and extension of the movement and increased interest (Continued on Page Two)

'PHANTOM' KILLS TWO, FIRES ON OTHER PERSONS

METCALFE, Miss., June 6—A "phantom flyer" who has killed two men from ambush and fired on at least five other persons aroused this state today.

Gov. Hugh White and Major T. B. Birdson, of the National Guard, planned to confer today on steps to hunt down the mad killer. It was considered possible troops would be mobilized to comb the state.

The first victim was Sam Grego, shot from ambush April 7. At first, this was regarded only as a mysterious murder, but later Ben Rogers, Negro, was killed by an expert shot from ambush into a speeding automobile.

Other reports of shootings, including the wounding of a Negro woman, were pieced together. Grego's brother, Vincent, petitioned Gov. White for action, declaring:

"We want help from the governor to stop this unknown assassin. It's driving the people crazy. No one knows who will be next."

KENTUCKY JUDGE HITS TOUTING OF MARRIAGES AS VIOLATION OF LAW

NEWPORT, Ky., June 6—At the request of Judge A. M. Caldwell, the Campbell county grand jury today launched a vigorous investigation into "marriage toutting."

"Marriage toutting," Judge Caldwell told the jury, "consists of inducing other persons, about to be married, for reward or pay to go before any minister or other person authorized to solemnize marriage, to be married."

Kentucky statutes, Judge Caldwell said, prohibit "marriage toutting."

Action Submitted After Final Arguments And Charge Are Offered

The jury was taken to lunch shortly after 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, and returned to continue its deliberations at 1:05 p. m.

The $13,361.40 suit of William P. McCrady, W. Franklin street, administrator of the estate of his son, John, against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus, was submitted to the jury Tuesday at 9:50 a. m.

A portion of the closing argument of M. C. Seyfert, an attorney for the plaintiff, was continued from Monday afternoon until Tuesday. This was followed by the charge of Judge Phil A. Henderson, of Logan. Eight special instructions were submitted by the defendant.

Other arguments for the plaintiff were made by Atty. F.N.R. Redfern and Ray W. Davis. Arguments for the defendant were made by Atty. Charles Gerhardt and A. J. Dombey.

The case opened in Common Pleas court on May 22. Two adjournments were ordered due to deaths of county officials and one for the observance of Memorial Day. No sessions were conducted on Saturdays.

Mr. McCrady asks damages for the death of his son in the collision between an auto and tractor-trailer on Route 23, north of Circleville in March, 1936. The plaintiff contends the tractor-trailer "cut a curve," was traveling at a high rate of speed and the lights were not properly adjusted. The defense contends the auto failed to make the curve and that some of the occupants of the auto had been drinking. Asa Elisea and Bernard Dowden were killed in the same wreck.

BRICKER TO PAY OWN EXPENSE ON JOURNEY TO FAIR

COLUMBUS, June 6—Governor Bricker will pay his own expenses to the New York World Fair and those of his wife, if she goes, he announced today.

"I'm not here to chisel anyone," Bricker declared in commenting on published reports that Bricker and his aides would attend the fair at the taxpayers' expense.

"I'll pay my own fare and my wife's if she goes," the governor said. "If any aides go, they'll pay their own expenses."

Don C. Power, the Governor's executive secretary, and Carlton Dargusch, military aide to the Governor, may go with Bricker to New York, June 16, to participate in Ohio Day at the fair. The party will leave the night of June 14.

Bricker said he also intended to pay his own fare to Albany, N. Y., to attend a conference of governors the latter part of June and also to San Francisco for a meeting of the American Bar Association in July and to see the San Francisco World Fair. At that time, the governor will take his vacation, he said.

After Lunch, Freedom

EDMUND and Sigmund Deutscher, two of fifty refugee children brought to the United States from Nazi Germany by Gilbert J. Kraus, of Philadelphia, have their last lunch aboard the S. S. President Harding as they arrive in New York. All fifty children were being taken to the Kraus estate. Fifty-seven Philadelphia families have offered to adopt or take care of them. They are the first group to be brought in without their parents by private individuals.

Refugees May Win Homes On Cuba's Isle Of Pines

HAVANA, June 6—The Cuban government this afternoon formally announced its refusal to permit 900-odd German Jewish refugees aboard the Hamburg American liner St. Louis to disembark on Cuban soil.

HAVANA, June 6—Racing against the deadline imposed by President Federico Laredo Bru, the German liner St. Louis with its passenger list of 907 hopeful Jewish refugees today was believed headed back towards Cuba.

Capt. Gustave Schroeder, according to unconfirmed wireless reports, expects to be in Cuban waters well before the deadline, in order to accept Bru's offer to give the Jews temporary sanctuary on the Isle of Pines.

When the offer was made, it was understood in spite of conflicting reports given out in Havana and New York, the St. Louis was off Florida, waiting a chance to land her hapless cargo somewhere in the new world.

The St. Louis may go first to Havana to transfer the refugees to smaller boats, as landing facilities on the Isle of Pines may be inadequate for the larger liner.

President Laredo Bru told the foreign press that the government would consider letting the refugees land some place like the Isle of Pines, if they would remain in a concentration camp, would pay for their food and lodging, and depart when arrangements were made to enter other countries.

He said the offer would be held open only until today noon, and the proposition applied only to those on the St. Louis, not to other refugees who might hope to come here.

The American Jewish Joint Distribution committee, whose Havana representative, Lawrence Berenson, has been in close touch with Laredo Bru, and other organizations are believed to be ready to guarantee that the Jews will not become public charges in Cuba.

Although the Isle of Pines, south of Cuba, is used as a prison island, it is also noted for its beauty and healthful climate and for the excellence of its winter fruits and vegetables.

LEAHY ELECTED TO BE GOVERNOR OF PUERTO RICO

WASHINGTON, June 6—Appointment of Admiral William D. Leahy retiring chief of naval operations, to be governor of Puerto Rico was announced by the White House today on receipt of the resignation of Gen. Blanton Winship from the island post.

President Roosevelt planned to send Leahy's nomination to the senate immediately.

Pellet Hole Found In Window At Home of Princess Royal; I. R. A. Suspected

LONDON, June 6—Forty-five year-old Ledwidge Vincent Lawlor, the man who shocked the British empire by allegedly taking a shot at the Duchess of Kent, was arraigned in Westminster police court today.

Said to be a recent arrival from Australia, Lawlor was charged with possessing a firearm with intent to endanger life and property, and with discharging the weapon at the automobile of King George's sister-in-law. The prisoner's occupation was given as that of welder's assistant.

Meanwhile Scotland Yard detectives investigated another, probably unrelated incident, involving the home of the Earl of Harewood and the Princess Royal. About the same time a shot was fired at the Duchess of Kent's limousine last night, servants found a small hole in the dining room window at the Harewood residence.

Police believed the window was broken by a bullet, which they thought may have been fired by a member of the Irish Republican army, the illegal anti-British organization connected with the recent wave of bombings in this country.

Earl, Princess Retired

The Earl and the Princess Royal, who is the only sister of King George VI, already had retired when the hole was found in the window.

The attempt on the Duchess of Kent, wife of the King's youngest brother, may have been in protest against the Duke's appointment as governor general of Australia, which he was due to take in November. The man under arrest, (Continued on Page Two)

HEART AILMENT ENDS IN DEATH OF JOHN WARREN

John Warren, 90, prominent Kingston church leader, died Monday at 3:30 p. m. in Grant hospital, Columbus. He had been a patient in the hospital for five days. Death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Warren was a son of Peter and Nancy Saylor Warren and was born in Salt Creek township. Mr. Warren's wife, Clara Black Warren, died in 1931. Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Lorena Bookwalter, of Kingston.

Mr. Warren was very active in work in the Methodist church, having held many offices in the church.

He was an extensive landowner in Pickaway and Salt Creek townships, Pickaway county. Until his recent illness he visited his farms practically every day and made frequent trips to Circleville.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday with the Rev. J. R. Fields, of Xenia, officiating. Burial will be in Whisler cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and sons.

M. C. Warren, Pinckney street, was a cousin of John Warren.

IRISHMAN ARRESTED

DETROIT, June 6—Sean Russell, officer in the outlawed Irish Republican Army, was arrested today on department of labor charges that he made "false and misleading statements in connection with his passport."

Thousands Apply for Permission To Be Present For Friday's Ceremonies

WASHINGTON, June 6—By cable, telephone, telegraph, and mail, applications for seats to see the King and Queen poured in by the thousands today to swamp the committee handling arrangements for the joint congressional reception to their majesties in the Capitol rotunda Friday.

There will be 3,500 seats outside the capitol main entrance, with an aisle laid out through their center. Down this aisle, in full view of the lucky 3,500 occupying the seats, will walk King George VI and Queen Elizabeth after they have received members of congress.

Apparently everybody in the United States and a number of persons abroad wanted to be in those seats. Preparations for the reception were completed today by the committee, headed by Senator Key Pittman (D) Nevada, president pro tem of the senate.

"Obviously the applicants have paid no attention to the recent announcement that these seats were for ladies only—wives of members and their feminine friends," Pittman said.

Charter Form Of Government Vote Urged By Business Organization

Members of the Chamber of Commerce who are circulating petitions for the charter form of government are to submit them to Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the organization, before noon Wednesday.

The petitions will be presented to city council at its regular meeting Wednesday night. These petitions will ask that council submit the question to voters. There are 25 petitions in circulation. The committee, headed by R. L. Brehmer, reports more than enough names have been signed to the petitions to request a vote.

The petitions were discussed at the regular meeting of the organization Tuesday noon.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 6—A rare distinction came today to one of the world's leading authorities on printing and paper-making—Dard Hunter of Chillicothe, O.—when Massachusetts Institute of Technology opened a new paper museum named in his honor.

Hunter will serve as curator of the museum, which contains a complete history of paper making from the earliest times until the introduction of paper making machinery.

Democrats Fill Ticket; Smith Asks Council Job

The Democratic slate for council was filled Tuesday when James I. Smith, Jr., S. Court street, filed his petition for the Third Ward position to be vacated by John H. Neuding. Mr. Neuding announced recently that he expected to remove from the ward and would not seek reelection.

All other councilmen are asking office. They are John C. Goeller, president; J. Donald Mason, First Ward; William M. Reid, Fourth Ward; and B. H. Gordon, Clarence Helvering and Frank A. Lynch, councilmen at large.

Miss Lillian Young filed her petition with the board of elections for reelection as city auditor. Miss Young is a Democrat.

With the final date for filing only three days away the petitions now on file include no party contests. Mayor W. B. Cady, Democrat, has filed for reelection. B. T. Hedges, Circleville township justice of peace, announced recently he would be a candidate for mayor on the Republican ticket.

Ship's Skipper Dumbfounded By Act; Airport Says Hop Unauthorized

CHATHAM, Mass., June 6—A youthful Pennsylvania student flier was snatched from a watery grave 300 miles at sea today by the crew of a fishing trawler which dragged him aboard just before his monoplane settled beneath the tossing Atlantic off the Georges fishing banks, east of Chatham.

He is twenty-five-year-old Chester Eshelman, of Carlisle, Pa., possessed of a passion for flying and apparently trying a trans-Atlantic flight in the single motored craft. Eshelman had taken off last night from Camden, N. J., airport, on an unauthorized flight.

Captain A. Bjartmars, skipper of the fishing trawler Villanova which effected the rescue, was dumbfounded by the foolhardiness of the flight and by Eshelman's story.

The skipper said: "The kid was going to Mars. At least that is what he told me."

Flying Aimlessly

First word of Eshelman's plight was sent to the Radiomarine control station at Shannon by the trawler Storm which reported at 5 a. m. that it had seen a small plane circling aimlessly over the Atlantic off Chatham.

The full report from the Storm, as relayed by Radio marine:

"Single - motored monoplane number not fully distinguishable but looks like DLO-220-70 circled us at 5 a. m. lat 42.10 long. 66.54, dropped note attached to five-gallon oil can requesting 'pint in direction land from your deck.' No signature or other information given but note written on back of piece of chart which shows position of probable course at some time or other penciled in. Plotting similar course our chart draws line through Boston and St. John, N. B.

"We painted letters WNW on plottage which would lead plane to Cape Cod, point of nearest land, but unlikely plane saw this since he disappeared at high altitude about 6 a. m."

CAMDEN, N. J., June 6—Police of all eastern states were advised early today to be on the lookout for a plane flown by Chester Eshelman, 25, of Carlisle, Pa., missing for 12 hours after the student pilot took off from Camden airport in an unauthorized flight.

Asked Queer Questions

Authorities at Walz flying school, which owns the plane, said Eshelman was licensed to fly only in a restricted area. Later the youth had been asking "queer" questions about the plane's operations, it was said at the airport.

The two-seater cabin monoplane piloted by Eshelman carried only enough fuel for 175 miles and was equipped with radio, blind flying instruments and a compass.

EXAMINER SAYS OHIO SALES TAX ACCOUNT SHORT

COLUMBUS, June 6—Shortage of $5,460 in Hamilton county sales tax accounts was reported today by State Examiner W. H. Howland. He returned a finding in that sum against County Treasurer Joseph Berning and a clerk, Charles T. Ryan.

Examiner Howland reported to State Auditor Joseph Ferguson that Ryan had admitted manipulating purchase orders and selling sales tax stamps out of order.

Berning was not implicated in the irregularity, the examiner stated, but is held jointly responsible because he must account for all county funds.

Ship's Skipper Dumbfounded By Act; Airport Says Hop Unauthorized

CHATHAM, Mass., June 6—A youthful Pennsylvania student flier was snatched from a watery grave 300 miles at sea today by the crew of a fishing trawler which dragged him aboard just before his monoplane settled beneath the tossing Atlantic off the Georges fishing banks, east of Chatham.

He is twenty-five-year-old Chester Eshelman, of Carlisle, Pa., possessed of a passion for flying and apparently trying a trans-Atlantic flight in the single motored craft. Eshelman had taken off last night from Camden, N. J., airport, on an unauthorized flight.

Captain A. Bjartmars, skipper of the fishing trawler Villanova which effected the rescue, was dumbfounded by the foolhardiness of the flight and by Eshelman's story.

The skipper said: "The kid was going to Mars. At least that is what he told me."

Flying Aimlessly

First word of Eshelman's plight was sent to the Radiomarine control station at Shannan by the trawler Storm which reported at 5 a. m. that it had seen a small plane circling aimlessly over the Atlantic off Chatham.

The full report from the Storm, as relayed by Radio Marine: "Single - motored monoplane number not fully distinguishable but looks like DLO-220-70 circled us at 5 a. m. at 42.10 long. 66.54, dropped note attached to five-gallon oil can requesting 'pint in direction land from your deck.' No signature or other information given but note written on back of piece of chart which shows position of probable course at some time or other penciled in. Plotting similar course our chart draws line through Boston and St. John, N. B."

"We painted letters WNW on pilothouse which would lead plane to Cape Cod, point of nearest land, but unlikely plane saw this since he disappeared at high altitude about 6 a. m."

CAMDEN, N. J., June 6—Police of all eastern states were advised early today to be on the lookout for a plane flown by Chester Eshelman, 25, of Carlisle, Pa., missing for 12 hours after the student pilot took off from Camden airport in an unauthorized flight.

Asked Queer Questions

Authorities at Walz flying school, which owns the plane, said Eshelman was licensed to fly only in a restricted area. Lately the youth had been asking "queer" questions about the plane's operations, it was said at the airport.

The two-seater cabin monoplane piloted by Eshelman carried only enough fuel for 175 miles and was equipped with radio, blind flying instruments and a compass.

EXAMINER SAYS OHIO SALES TAX A C C O U N T SHORT

COLUMBUS, June 6—Shortage of $5,460 in Hamilton county sales tax accounts was reported today by State Examiner W. H. Howland. He returned a finding in that sum against County Treasurer Joseph Berning and a clerk, Charles T. Ryan.

Examiner Howland reported to State Auditor Joseph Ferguson that Ryan had admitted manipulating purchase orders and selling sales tax stamps out of order. Berning was not implicated in the irregularity, the examiner stated, but is held jointly responsible because he must account for all county funds.

and participation are indications that the yearly obligation of the community would be met without difficulty, officials declared.

Headquarters for the drive is L. W. Kinsey's store. Workers will report there and contributions may be left by persons interested but not contacted by solicitors.

Cooperating communities are holding drives simultaneously with the Circleville drive. They are Kingston, New Holland, Williamsport and Ashville. These campaigns are in charge of the respective troop committees.

Local Scouts and Scouters will assemble at the American hotel at 7 p. m. Wednesday to form a motor caravan to travel to Gold Cliff where the quarterly Court of Honor will be held. The program will be held at the campfire ring at the cabin of Troop 153.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, chairman of the committee on Scout advancement, will be in charge of the recognition ceremony. Local Scouters will assist in presenting awards.

An informal campfire program will supplement the Court of Honor. Held outdoors, in a natural setting, Scouts will sing camp songs and participate in fun around the campfire. Howard Kautz, field executive, will be in charge of this phase of the program. Parents and friends are invited to attend the meeting.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

There is almost no place in a home in which a built-in mirror won't add a distinctive touch.

A full length mirror in an entry door is quite as practical as it is decorative. In the master bedroom or bathroom door, or around three sides of a recessed bathtub, these mirrors create an atmosphere of brightness and sparkling cleanliness.

From the large mirrors that frame a fireplace to the simple little panels which are being used for wall light switches, built-in mirrors are popular.

In a dining room there may be a built-in niche with glass shelving and the back and sides of the niche mirrored. Mirror panels between two windows will create an illusion of one double-glazed face.

When casters on furniture drop out too often, remove them, pour melted wax in the holes and insert the casters before the wax hardens. After it has set the casters will not fall out again.

AUSTRALIAN, 45, CHARGED WITH FIRING BULLET

King's Sister-In-Law Unhurt By Assailant On Way To American Movie

It was understood, arrived here about three weeks ago from Australia.

Unaware that a bullet was aimed at her, the Duchess of Kent and the Earl and Countess of Portland went to an American movie in the Haymarket.

Later, the Duchess, who was described as "very upset," said she heard the crack, but thought it was her car backfiring.

Two policemen on guard in Belgrave Square, fashionable district where the Duke and Duchess live, sprang on the alleged gunman and, after a short struggle, took him to a nearby police station.

Afterwards a saved-off shotgun was found, with one cartridge fired, near the Kent home.

The Duke had gone out on another engagement just after dinner, but he was informed at once of the shooting.

Today a special guard of three policemen was stationed outside the house, and all persons who approached were halted.

KASEYS FLYING FAR IN FRONT IN ASSOCIATION

COLUMBUS, June 6 — With three double-headers scheduled for tonight, American Association baseball teams today wondered how they could catch the high-flying Kansas City Blues.

Although the Blues lost yesterday to Louisville, 6 to 0, the second-place Minneapolis Millers were taken to town twice by the Toledo Mudhens, last-place nine. To make things worse, the Indianapolis Indians were beaten by the Milwaukee Brewers, 4 to 2, and had to share the third spot.

In a game that didn't count quite so much, the St. Paul Saints broke the winning streak of Nate Andrews, Columbus hurler, as they scored 5 times to the Red Birds' two.

Charlie Wagner pitched the shutout for the Louisville Colonels, limiting the hard-hitting Blues to three safeties. Freddie Hutchinson, prize rookie hurler of the Detroit Tigers, won the first game for the Mudhens, allowing Minneapolis only six hits.

PENDERGAST REPORTED IN CRITICAL CONDITION

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 6 — Prisoner No. 53295 — Tom J. Pendergast — was reported in critical condition today at Leavenworth penitentiary, where he was sent for federal income tax evasion.

The erstwhile Democratic political boss of Kansas City, Mo., who is 67 years old, suffered a heart attack soon after being admitted a week ago to serve his 15-month term.

He had been ill for several months prior to his sentence.

War-General Burgoyne at Saratoga, N. Y., and General Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va.

Behind and to the right of the royal visitors will be a picture of the Baptism of the Indian princess Pocahontas, with her English husband John Rolfe standing at her side, at Jamestown, Va., in 1613. To the right stands a statue of George Washington; to the left a marble replica of Thomas Jefferson.

Pittman will introduce members of the senate, standing to the King's left. The Queen will be beside her husband, and to her right Vice President Garner will stand.

At 11 a. m. the royal entourage will be greeted at the Capitol steps by Pittman, Senate Majority and Minority Leaders Barkley and McNary, respectively, and other members of the senate-house reception committee, and escorted to the rotunda. Inside their majesties will stand on the blue carpet and the members of congress will file past them. Rep. Sol Bloom (D) New York, will introduce the house members. After the greetings the committee will escort the visitors down the steps and through the aisle between the outside seats.

From the capitol their majesties will go to the navy yard and embark for Mount Vernon, Va., returning by motor.

Many members of the house have announced their intention of wearing "everyday clothes" at the reception. Most of the Senators will wear formal morning clothes. So far only two senators have announced they would not attend the reception — Senators Smith of South Carolina and Donahoe of Ohio.

HITLER REVIEWS NAZIS WHO TOOK ARMS IN SPAIN

BERLIN, June 6 — Germany, winner of so many bloodless victories in recent years, today celebrated with military pomp her first triumph since the World War on the actual battlefield — that of the Condor Legion in Spain.

Chancellor Hitler, flanked by his defense commanders and ministers and five Spanish generals who served under Generalissimo Francisco Franco, reviewed a brilliant parade of more than 10,000 Condor Legionnaires, all active participants in Franco's victory.

Eighty mothers and other relatives of the 300 legionnaires who fell in Spain were Hitler's honor guests.

The Spanish generals, all of whom played a prominent part in the drive against the Leftist regime, were Generals Yague, Solchaga, Valino, Alonzo, and Campos.

While Britain and France still struggled to bring Soviet Russia into the anti-Fascist front, Germany continued to make progress diplomatically.

Tomorrow non-aggression pacts between the Reich and Estonia and Latvia will be signed in Berlin by the foreign ministers concerned. Lithuania already has such a treaty with the Reich.

'BIG JOHN' HAS OPPORTUNITY TO GAIN REVENGE

NEW YORK, June 6 — Johnstown will get the opportunity to revenge itself on Challenged, the Preakness victor and the colt that made "John" look so foolish in the mud.

W. L. Brann, owner and breeder of Challenged, has informed Aqueduct officials that Challenged will carry his silks in the Dwyer stakes a week from Saturday, it was revealed today. The return meeting of the two stars will give the Aqueduct classic national interest.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, June 6

THE PLANETARY aspects for this day indicate a particularly lively and stirring state of affairs. Much of importance may take place with drastic action. There is an element of chance, an initiative and strenuous methods may have telling results because of such high pressure. This particularly affects new projects and all of an untold or speculative nature. But be alert and tactful in approaching superiors or those in authority.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of highly-stimulated forces and faculties. There is an inclination to plunge into projects and perhaps aggressive attack major propositions of an untold or perilous nature. Such strenuous measures may bring definite progress, even where chance and hazard are obvious. But be wary of traps and use finesse with superiors.

A child born on this day may be bold, brave and progressive, with fine initiative and enterprise. It may like to take chances and tackle perils. However, it should be genial, companionable, witty and popular, leaning toward extravagance and indulgence.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL INCREASING TRUSTEES' PAY

COLUMBUS, June 6 — The bill of Rep. Floyd Mees (R-Meigs) raising the annual pay of township trustees and township clerks to a maximum of $525 and $600 respectively was signed by Governor Bricker today.

The increases will be governed by the size of the township budgets. The maximum salaries of both trustees and clerks is now $250.

GEPHART FUNERAL TO BE WEDNESDAY IN DELAWARE

Funeral services for Edward E. Gephart, 66, native of the Williamsport community and former Delaware county commissioner, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Morrison funeral home, Delaware. Burial will be in Delaware.

Mr. Gephart's body was found in a barn at his farm. He took his life by hanging. He was reported to have been despondent over ill health.

Surviving are his widow, Emma; one daughter, Mrs. Mabel Dawson, Delaware; two sons, Myron, of Delaware, and Bernard, of Kibbourne, and four brothers, Charles, of Delaware county, Thomas, of Williamsport, and George and William, of St. Louis.

4-H CLUB NEWS

The Jackson township 4-H Nature club met in the home of its leader, Miss Josephine Wolfe, Thursday evening. After the business session, the members discussed their projects, the study of birds and insects. Each member is to have a bird house partly constructed and to have learned the parts of a bird by the next meeting on Friday, June 16, at the school. C. E. Blakeslee, assistant county agent, attended the meeting. During the evening games were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mary Fischer, News reporter.

LARCENY CHARGED

Joseph Moore, 30, of E. Ohio street, was fined $50 and costs, Tuesday, on a charge of petit larceny, filed in Mayor W. B. Cady's court by Andrew Redd. Moore was unable to pay his fine and was sent to the county jail. The property stolen included a suitcase and various articles of a total value of $7.48. Moore admitted the charge.

it was understood, arrived here about three weeks ago from Australia.

Unaware that a bullet was aimed at her, the Duchess of Kent and the Earl and Countess of Portarlington went to an American movie in the Haymarket.

Later, the Duchess, who was described as "very upset", said she heard the crack, but thought it was her car backfiring.

Two policemen on guard in Belgrave Square, fashionable district where the Duke and Duchess live, sprang on the alleged gunman and, after a short struggle, took him to a nearby police station.

Afterwards a saved-off shotgun was found, with one cartridge fired, near the Kent home.

The Duke had gone out on another engagement just after dinner, but he was informed at once of the shooting.

King to Hear Him

CHURCHGOERS who have been very faithful in their attendance at St. James' Episcopal church, Hyde Park, N. Y., are to receive a bit of their reward—here on earth. Swamped by innumerable requests for tickets of admission to the church for the service which will be attended by President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their house guests, King George and Queen Elizabeth, Sunday, June 11, Rev. Frank Wilson is limiting them to only those most regular in attendance.

HITLER REVIEWS NAZIS WHO TOOK ARMS IN SPAIN

BERLIN, June 6 — Germany, winner of so many bloodless victories in recent years, today celebrated with military pomp her first triumph since the World War on the actual battlefield—that of the Condor Legion in Spain.

Chancellor Hitler, flanked by his defense commanders and ministers and five Spanish generals who served under Generalissimo Francisco Franco, reviewed a brilliant parade of more than 10,000 Condor Legionnaires, all active participants in Franco's victory.

Eighty mothers and other relatives of the 300 legionnaires who fell in Spain were Hitler's honor guests.

The Spanish generals, all of whom played a prominent part in the drive against the Lefist regime, were Generals Yague, Solchaga, Valino, Alonzo, and Campos.

While Britain and France still struggled to bring Soviet Russia into the anti-Fascist front, Germany continued to make progress diplomatically.

Tomorrow non-aggression pacts between the Reich and Estonia and Latvia will be signed in Berlin by the foreign ministers concerned. Lithuania already has such a treaty with the Reich.

Washington In Dither As Royal Visit Nears

Behind and to the right of the royal visitors will be a picture of the Baptism of the Indian princess Pocahontas, with her English husband John Rolfe standing at her side, at Jamestown, Va., in 1613. To the right stands a statue of George Washington; to the left a marble replica of Thomas Jefferson.

Pittman will introduce members of the senate, standing to the King's left. The Queen will be beside her husband, and to her right Vice President Garner will stand.

At 11 a. m. the royal entourage will be greeted at the Capitol steps by Pittman, Senate Majority and Minority Leaders Barkley and McNary, respectively, and other members of the senate-house reception committee, and escorted to the rotunda. Inside their majesties will stand on the blue carpet and the members of congress will file past them. Rep. Sol Bloom (D) New York, will introduce the house members. After the greetings the committee will escort the visitors down the steps and through the aisle between the outside seats.

From the capitol their majesties will go to the navy yard and embark for Mount Vernon, Va., returning by motor.

Many members of the house have announced their intention of wearing "everyday clothes" at the reception. Most of the Senators will wear formal morning clothes. So far only two senators have announced they would not attend the reception—Senators Smith of South Carolina and Donahay of Ohio.

'BIG JOHN' HAS OPPORTUNITY TO GAIN REVENGE

NEW YORK, June 6 — Johnstone will get the opportunity to revenge himself on Challendon, the Preakness victor and the colt that made "John" look so foolish in the mud.

W. L. Brann, owner and breeder of Challendon, has informed Aqueduct officials that Challendon will carry his silks in the Dwyer stakes a week from Saturday, it was revealed today. The return meeting of the two stars will give the Aqueduct classic national interest.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, June 6

THE PLANETARY aspects for this day indicate a particularly lively and stirring state of affairs. Much of importance may take place with drastic action. There is an element of chance, an initiative and strenuous methods may have telling results because of such high pressure. This particularly affects new projects and all of an untold or speculative nature. But be alert and tactful in approaching superiors or those in authority.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of highly-stimulated forces and faculties. There is an inclination to plunge into projects and perhaps aggressively attack major propositions of an untold or perilous nature. Such strenuous measures may bring definite progress, even where chance and hazard are obvious. But be wary of traps and use finesse with superiors.

A child born on this day may be bold, brave and progressive, with fine initiative and enterprise. It may like to take chances and tackle perils. However, it should be genial, companionable, witty and popular, leaning toward extravagance and indulgence.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL INCREASING TRUSTEES' PAY

COLUMBUS, June 6—The bill of Rep. Floyd Mees (R-Meigs) raising the annual pay of township trustees and township clerks to a maximum of $525 and $600 respectively was signed by Governor Bricker today.

The increases will be governed by the size of the township budgets. The maximum salaries of both trustees and clerks is now $250.

UNITES HELD MONDAY FOR DAUGHTER OF JOHN HITES

Funeral services were held Monday for Marianne Cynthia, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hite, of Walnut township, who died Sunday. Short services were held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gale L. Hanover, Walnut township. Brief services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Hite, near Marion, in the afternoon. Burial was in Grand Prairie cemetery, north of Marion.

Beside the parents and grandparents, the baby is survived by a brother, Forrest Lee.

ICKES LAUNCHES DRIVE TO ELECT F. D. THIRD TERM

Interior Secretary Calls For Nomination In Magazine Article

FARLEY STILL IN DARK

National Chairman Unable To Learn If President Would Enter Race

WASHINGTON, June 6 — The "palace guard" drive to renominate President Roosevelt in 1940 burst into the open today with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes declaring for a third term.

Ickes voiced his 1940 preference in an article in the magazine "Look." He asserted Mr. Roosevelt is the only man in the world qualified for a third term and demanded the electorate be given a chance to vote on the so-called traditional ban against three terms in the White House.

As Ickes spoke publicly, Postmaster James A. Farley returned to the capital to tell friends he is unable to learn whether the President desires a third term. Farley told a confidant:

"The President has never told me what he proposes to do about 1940. I'm completely in the dark and I don't intend to ask him. If he's going to talk to me about it, he must open the subject."

Farley made this statement after his recent conference with the President at Hyde Park. Farley was believed to have told the President at this conference that he found party leaders willing to give him a third term nomination. A little later, though, Farley told newspapermen he had not discussed politics with the President, despite the fact it was the first time they met after the postmaster-general made a transcontinental trip to test out third term sentiment among Democratic leaders.

Can Be Elected

Farley has told his friends, too, he believes a Democrat can be elected president in 1940. In this connection, however, he avoided mention of the President by name, but gave his friends the impression that the President could be reelected.

The Ickes statement for a third term comes as no surprise. A month ago—on May 4—International News Service reported the "palace guard" had decided on a "draft Roosevelt" campaign as a last resort to "Stop Garner"—to stop Vice President John Nance Garner from running away with the 1940 nomination. In that article, International News Service reported it was the purpose of the "palace guard" to convince Mr. Roosevelt "there is a real popular demand for his renomination, despite the traditional ban on third terms."

Statement Quoted

The Ickes statement falls exactly into this category. The interior secretary said:

"I want President Roosevelt to run for a third term . . . to deny the people through political humbug, the opportunity to decide for themselves whether they want the President for a third term is to deny democracy itself."

Ickes said men like Alf Landon, William Allen White and Gifford Pinchot supported Theodore Roosevelt for a third term in 1912. He quoted George Washington as intimating he did not oppose a third term for some other president, though declining it for himself.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

HENRY Fonda as the brawny-armed backwoods youth in the title role of Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln," due Sunday at the Grand theatre.

AT THE GRAND

In its search for American themes for its feature productions Hollywood has done its share of Abraham Lincoln stories. No more words of praise or excited adulation or adoring screen plays could add to his glory.

But Darryl F. Zanuck, in his production of "Young Mr. Lincoln," spurs a portrayal of the tradition of Lincoln's greatness to give us instead a searching motion picture of the young Lincoln. It is the story, told with wit, simplicity and power, of the gangling young man fighting for the lives of two innocent boys and saving them in the dramatic revelation of the famous "moonlight murder" trial. It is the story of young Lincoln's wrestling, storytelling, courtship and lightning wit. In a word, the Lamar Trotti screen play reveals the real and human Lincoln.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Because arc lights melt icicles a Hollywood set designer turned out an artificial icicle which actually drips water but which does not melt. Used for the first time in a Swiss chalet scene for "Bridal Suite," which opens tomorrow at the Cliftona theatre with Annabella and Robert Young, the prop icicles were made of hollow glass with a tiny hole at the tip. They are the work of set designer Harry McAfee and were fastened to the prop snow—real snow also melts—with plaster covered by tallow. They were filled with water before being hung up, and dripped at intervals. When Robert Young forgot to duck while walking under a cluster of them, the glass broke and an unexpected shower ran down his neck.

WHEELER AT MEETING

Joe Wheeler, manager of the Chakares-Grand theatre, will go to Springfield, Wednesday, for an all-day managers meeting of Chakares theatres. Wednesday evening they will be guests at a party at the home of Phil Chakares, president of the theatre organization.

JUNIOR FAIR'S LEADERS MEET THURSDAY EVE

Senior Members To Appoint Youngsters To Assist In Fall Event

PROBLEMS TO BE AIRD

More Space Necessary As Exhibits Continue To Grow

Junior members of the Pickaway County Junior Fair board will be appointed Thursday night by the senior members of the organization. Officers will be named by the junior members.

Each senior member of the board names a junior member to assist in conducting the various Junior Fair exhibits, a part of the annual Pumpkin Show to be held Oct. 18, 19, 20, and 21. The board meets in the county school offices.

Senior members of the board and the departments they head are F. K. Blair, county extension agent and Miss Mary Shortridge, Jackson township, the 4-H club exhibits; Kenneth Holtzre, Walnut township, vocational agriculture; Miss Olice Grimm, Walnut township, home economics; Mrs. Cletus Kershner, Scioto street, Girl Scouts; Mrs. Turney Glick, Circleville township, Juvenile Grange; Dr. G. D. Phillips, Beverly road, Boy Scouts; G. D. Bradley, Pickaway township, Future Farmers of America; and A. W. Boyer, Williamsport, school shop. George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, is a member of the board of directors of the Pickaway County Agricultural society, in charge of the Junior Fair.

Senior officers of the Junior Fair board are Mr. Bradley, president; Miss Shortridge vice president; and Mr. McDowell, secretary and treasurer.

In addition to the appointment of the junior members and their organization meeting, the board will discuss premiums for the 1939 show.

One of the problems facing the board this year is the need for more space for exhibits, especially the livestock exhibit which is held in tents at the rear of the Armory.

At the last meeting of the board Mrs. Kershner and Mr. Boyer were appointed to audit the accounts of the 1938 show.

KEPLER, GILBERT AHEAD

COLUMBUS, June 6 — Bobby Kepler, Ohio State University golf coach, and Bill Gilbert, OSU freshman, today held the Brookside Country Club Pro-Amateur invitation title. They had a best ball score of 66, three strokes ahead of Clyde Mumma and A. Kindler, of Dayton. Tommy Bryant and Harvey Young, also of Dayton, were third with 70.

east Governor is that Elmer Andrews, Wage-Hour Administrator, had an advance tip that the criticism was coming and immediately telephoned Chip Roberts, secretary of the Southeast Governors' Conference.

Chip was in Atlanta and denied vigorously that any action was to be taken against the Wage-Hour Administration.

"All that I ask," Administrator Andrews told him, "is that if any action is to be taken, I have the privilege of a hearing."

Robert assured him that this would be the case. Imagine the wrath of the Wage-Hour board, therefore, when they discovered that the Governors had met in Memphis and passed a stinging rebuke of the Wage-Hour Administration.

Five Governors were present: Diver of Georgia, Bailey of Arkansas, White of Mississippi, Dixon of Alabama and Phillips of Oklahoma. However, Governor Rivers said that the rebuke represented the view of all the eleven Governors, even though six were absent.

The Wage-Hour people immediately began checking the absent Governors, and found that they were by no means unanimous. Governor Maybank of South Carolina expressed himself in disagreement with the resolution, while Governor Hoey of North Carolina said that he had not been consulted regarding the vote, but refused to commit himself.

Wage-Hour officials are particularly irked with vivacious Chip Roberts, who failed to carry out his pledge to give Andrews a hearing. Robert, on the other hand, says that since the Southeast Governors came out originally for the Wage-Hour Act, they now should be entitled to criticize it, and that it is hurting the people it is supposed to help.

CHILEAN DIPLOMACY

Chile has sent a true democrat to Washington.

Alberto Cabero Ambassador, presented his credentials to Roosevelt the other day, with the usual top-hat ceremony. Then he returned to the Embassy, escorted by Chief of Protocol George Sumner, and the Chileans had a private highball party.

While this was going on, the doorbell rang. The uniformed butlers were busy. The bell rang again. Then Ambassador Cabero did what no Ambassador has ever done in Washington before.

Still wearing his cutaway and striped trousers, he scurried out into the hall, opened the door himself, and took the evening paper.

AND that's just the beer tax revenue this state itself collects. . . to lift the burden of direct taxation from your shoulders. Nationwide, beer contributes over a million dollars a day to the cost of government. Think what that means in paying for relief, in public works, in old age assistance right in your own community.

Then think of the million new jobs that beer made. And then add to that a 100 million dollar market for farmers' crops!

How can we keep these benefits . . . for you and for us? Brewers of America realize this depends on keeping beer retailing as wholesome as beer itself. They want to help public officials in every possible way. They cannot enforce laws. But they can—and will—cooperate!

The Ickes statement falls exactly into this category. The interior secretary said:

"I want President Roosevelt to run for a third term . . . to deny the people through political humbug, the opportunity to decide for themselves whether they want the President for a third term is to deny democracy itself."

Ickes said men like Alf Landon, William Allen White and Gifford Pinchot supported Theodore Roosevelt for a third term in 1912. He quoted George Washington as intimating he did not oppose a third term for some other president, though declining it for himself.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

HENRY Fonda as the brawny-armed backwoods youth in the title role of Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Young Mr. Lincoln," due Sunday at the Grand theatre.

AT THE GRAND

In its search for American themes for its feature productions Hollywood has done its share of Abraham Lincoln stories. No more words of praise or excited adulation or adoring screen plays could add to his glory.

But Darryl F. Zanuck, in his production of "Young Mr. Lincoln," spurns a portrayal of the tradition of Lincoln's greatness to give us instead a searching motion picture of the young Lincoln. It is the story, told with wit, simplicity and power, of the gangling young man fighting for the lives of two innocent boys and saving them in the dramatic revelation of the famous "moonlight murder" trial. It is the story of young Lincoln's wrestling, storytelling, courtship and lightning wit. In a word, the Lamar Trotti screen play reveals the real and human Lincoln.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Because air lights melt icicles a Hollywood set designer turned out an artificial icicle which actually drips water but which does not melt. Used for the first time in a Swiss chalet scene for "Bridal Suite," which opens tomorrow at the Cliftona theatre with Annabella and Robert Young, the prop icicles were made of hollow glass with a tiny hole at the tip. They are the work of set designer Harry McAffee and were fastened to the prop snow—real snow also melts—with plaster covered by tallow. They were filled with water before being hung up, and dripped at intervals. When Robert Young forgot to duck while walking under a cluster of them, the glass broke and an unexpected shower ran down his neck.

WHEELER AT MEETING

Joe Wheeler, manager of the Chakeres-Grand theatre, will go to Springfield, Wednesday, for an all-day managers meeting of Chakeres theatres. Wednesday evening they will be guests at a party at the home of Phil Chakeres, president of the theatre organization.

JUNIOR FAIR'S LEADERS MEET THURSDAY EVE

Senior Members To Appoint Youngsters To Assist In Fall Event

PROBLEMS TO BE AIRD

More Space Necessary As Exhibits Continue To Grow

Junior members of the Pickaway County Junior Fair board will be appointed Thursday night by the senior members of the organization. Officers will be named by the junior members.

Each senior member of the board names a junior member to assist in conducting the various Junior Fair exhibits, a part of the annual Pumpkin Show to be held Oct. 18, 19, 20, and 21. The board meets in the county school offices.

Senior members of the board and the departments they head are F. K. Blair, county extension agent and Miss Mary Shortridge, Jackson township, the 4-H club exhibits; Kenneth Holtrey, Walnut township, vocational agriculture; Miss Olive Grimm, Walnut township, home economics; Mrs. Cletus Kershner, Scioto street, Girl Scouts; Mrs. Turney Glick, Circleville township, Juvenile Grange; Dr. G. D. Phillips, Beverly road, Boy Scouts, G. D. Bradley, Pickaway township, Future Farmers of America; and A. W. Boyer, Williamsport, school shop. George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, is a member of the board of directors of the Pickaway County Agricultural society, in charge of the Junior Fair.

Senior officers of the Junior Fair board are Mr. Bradley, president; Miss Shortridge vice president; and Mr. McDowell, secretary and treasurer.

In addition to the appointment of the junior members and their organization meeting, the board will discuss premiums for the 1939 show.

One of the problems facing the board this year is the need for more space for exhibits, especially the livestock exhibit which is held in tents at the rear of the Armory.

At the last meeting of the board Mrs. Kershner and Mr. Boyer were appointed to audit the accounts of the 1938 show.

KEPLER, GILBERT AHEAD

COLUMBUS, June 6 — Bobby Kepler, Ohio State University golf coach, and Bill Gilbert, OSU freshman, today held the Brookside Country Club Pro-Amateur invitation title. They had a best ball score of 66, three strokes ahead of Clyde Mumma and A. Kinder, of Dayton. Tommy Bryant and Harvey Young, also of Dayton, were third with 70.

east Governor is that Elmer Andrews, Wage-Hour Administrator, had an advance tip that the criticism was coming and immediately telephoned Chip Roberts, secretary of the Southeast Governors' Conference.

Chip was in Atlanta and denied vigorously that any action was to be taken against the Wage-Hour Administration.

"All that I ask," Administrator Andrews told him, "is that if any action is to be taken, I have the privilege of a hearing."

Robert assured him that this would be the case. Imagine the wrath of the Wage-Hour board, therefore, when they discovered that the Governors had met in Memphis and passed a stinging rebuke of the Wage-Hour Administration.

Five Governors were present: Diverse of Georgia, Bailey of Arkansas, White of Mississippi, Dixon of Alabama and Phillips of Oklahoma. However, Governor Rivers said that the rebuke represented the view of all the eleven Governors, even though six were absent.

The Wage-Hour people immediately began checking the absent Governors, and found that they were by no means unanimous. Governor Maybank of South Carolina expressed himself in disagreement with the resolution, while Governor Hoey of North Carolina said that he had not been consulted regarding the vote, but refused to commit himself.

Wage-Hour officials are particularly irked with vivacious Chip Robert, who failed to carry out his pledge to give Andrews a hearing. Robert, on the other hand, says that since the Southeast Governors came out originally for the Wage-Hour Act, they now should be entitled to criticize it, and that it is hurting the people it is supposed to help.

CHILEAN DIPLOMACY

Chile has sent a true democrat to Washington.

Alberto Cabero Ambassador, presented his credentials to Roosevelt the other day, with the usual top-hat ceremony. Then he returned to the Embassy, escorted by Chief of Protocol George Sumnerlin, and the Chileans had a private highball party.

While this was going on, the doorbell rang. The uniformed butlers were busy. The bell rang again. Then Ambassador Cabero did what no Ambassador Cabero had ever done in Washington before.

Still wearing his cutaway and striped trousers, he hurried out into the hall, opened the door himself, and took the evening paper.

TWO HELD FOR JURY

Gilbert LeVal and James Chennault, both of Lockbourne, have been bound to the grand jury under $200 bond each on charges of stealing a boat valued at $50 from Muri Rathburn, Lockbourne, April 8. Both furnished bond. The cases were heard before B. T. Hedges, Justice of peace. The men denied the charge.

MABEL L. WESTENHAVER IN PLEA FOR DIVORCE DECREE

Mrs. Mabel L. Westenhaber filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas court, Monday, against J. Merton Westenhaber, charging neglect of duty. Mrs. Westenhaber asks custody of a minor child and alimony.

They were married Nov. 22, 1914 in Circleville, the petition says. Mrs. Westenhaber obtained an injunction restraining Mr. Westenhaber from disposing of property or molesting her while the action is pending.

TOWN STREET RESIDENTS BUY COUNTY PROPERTY

Hobart and Goldie Amann, Town street, purchased 2.84 acres of land and a residence, Monday, sold by the county commissioners with Forrest Short, county auditor, as auctioneer. The price was $1,000. The property sold was a part of the Melvin land along the Island road, purchased recently by the commissioners. The commissioners purchased the land for its gravel deposit.

AND that's just the beer tax revenue this state itself collects . . . to lift the burden of direct taxation from your shoulders. Nationwide, beer contributes over a million dollars a day to the cost of government. Think what that means in paying for relief, in public works, in old age assistance right in your own community.

Then think of the million new jobs that beer made. And then add to that a 100 million dollar market for farmers' crops!

How can we keep these benefits . . . for you and for us? Brewer of America realize this depends on keeping beer retailing as wholesome as beer itself. They want to help public officials in every possible way. They cannot enforce laws. But they can—and will—cooperate!

RAILROAD FARE CUTS

THE cut on passenger rates in the East and South should send a lot of motorists back to the railroad ticket windows and persuade a lot of stay-at-homes to go and see their relatives. A financial writer says such a slashing of passenger rate structure is like cutting the price of steel sheets $8 a ton.

Rates east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, the most populous and busiest industrial area in America, are cut from 2½ cents a mile, coach fare, to 2¼ for hauls of 100 miles, and on down to 1.7 cents for longer trips. The drastic nature of these cuts is evident when the passenger remembers that for 17 years before the 1936 cuts, the basic coach rate was 3.6 cents per mile. Rates are to drop in upper Pullman berths, as well as coaches.

Southern roads also are preparing to make a 10 percent reduction in round-trip coach fares.

The most interesting thing about this "rate-cutting spree" is that the railroads themselves, which formerly resisted such cuts, are now asking permission to adopt them voluntarily. They seem convinced that in this field, under present conditions, they can make more money by cheaper service.

BOOKS ON SOUTH AMERICA

GROWTH of North American interest in South America in the last twenty years is shown by a report of the Columbus Memorial Library of the Pan American Union. The number of books published in England and the United States on Latin America has more than doubled in the last ten years.

Dividing the years 1919-1938 into five-year periods, one finds only eighty such books published in the first. In the second five years there were 172, in the third 257 and in the last 346 books on Latin America. One-fifth of all these books were about Mexico, our nearest Latin neighbor. In recent years, travelers and authors have been penetrating farther below the Rio Grande, and we are beginning to get books about nearly all the countries to the south. Within recent months there has been published a fine history of all Latin America.

This attention we now pay our sister continent is belated. Europe has taken a greater interest in that region heretofore than we have. It is possible, however, that with our American speed and thoroughness we may yet catch up in information and understanding, to our own great advantage and, we hope, to South America's.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a fine morning following the rains and found everything looking better than only a few days ago when drought threatened. Took the pup for a backyard stroll and then headed for the post, there meeting Dr. Courtwright, whose hours at the federal building generally are different than mine. He all dressed in white. When I am dressed in white I am pleased with my appearance for only the first half hour. After that I look like a white wing after a hard day following the ponies. But not the doctor. Wish I knew how he does it.

At the Coffee Club did chat with Bud Harden and learned that Pickaway county has two score or more beagle hounds of the world's best blood, and that some of the dogs are beginning to attract the attention of dog show judges. The scrivener never followed the beagles in the field, but does know many men who do so and gain great pleasure thereby. I like the coon dogs on a drizzling night, but have not been out behind them for ten years or more.

Sweet music, an open-mouthed dog in the woods at night.

An orchid to Frank Lynch for his playground promotion. Success is moving up on that project, and a worthy project it is too. Frank has a real interest in youngsters, probably because he is so much of a youngster himself. It was only the other morning that Frank entered the Coffee Club all full of hope and then met up with Earl and paid a dime for his coffee. Within fifteen minutes Frank had become a one-man picket line in front of the "club", announcing in a loud voice to one and all "This place is unfair to coffee drinkers."

Ten years ago the Kiwanis club was organized in the village. In the decade the club has done much for the community, and has a fine program worked out for the future. Here comes James Grubb, in from his farm out Ringgold way, and bearing a box of the finest strawberries I have seen this year. A mighty welcome gift to the scrivener. In the box only 24 berries, and it was overflowing.

STALIN BALKED

WASHINGTON—One secret diplomatic move, hitherto undisclosed, sheds light on the failure of France and Britain to pull Russia into the anti-Nazi alliance. During the height of the negotiations between Moscow, London and Paris, the German Ambassador delivered to the Russian Government the record of conversations between England, France and Germany in which the two democracies urged Hitler to attack the Soviet.

The conversations were held last Fall after Munich. At that time, the British were confident that they had worked out a real peace pact with Hitler, and made discreet suggestions to him regarding his future moves in Europe.

These suggestions were very logical and based upon population studies. The British pointed out that at the rate Germany's population was increasing, it would be foolish to expand in the more crowded areas of southern or western Europe. The only area which presented real opportunity, they suggested, was the Soviet Ukraine.

The conversations were carried on chiefly by Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin and a known Nazi sympathizer.

WHY STALIN BALKS

Why Hitler did not accept the suggestion is known only to himself. But what is known, is that just as the British changed their tactics from attempted cooperation with Hitler to building up a wall around him, and just as they were beseeching Stalin to join this wall, Hitler dumped the Ukrainian correspondence in Stalin's lap.

It made the Russians think twice before joining with allies who only six months before had tried to wreck them.

NOTE—Another reason for Russian hesitancy regarding the Franco-British pact is the difficulty of making the Russian soldier fight away from his own soil. He will always fight to protect Russia, but getting him to wage war to protect England is like persuading a Des Moines ex-doughboy that he should cross the Atlantic again to save France.

DIET AND HEALTH

Work in the Clinics On Arthritis Cases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A LARGE arthritis clinic recently, in which I studied the patients for several days, I found that arthritis cases are divided into three types. Each of these types is likely to occur in individuals of different constitutional appearance and physical characteristics.

The first type is the infectious arthritis, which is sometimes called "rheumatoid arthritis." This may occur in any of the joints and is likely to occur symmetrically. In other words, it is likely to occur in both wrists if it occurs in one, or in both elbows or shoulders.

There is swelling, pain, and in the course of time a good deal of disability from stiffness, and inability to move the joints. The patients who are liable to have this condition are young, underweight, anemic, with glossy, atrophic skin.

Due to Infection

It is considered by the doctors whose clinic I visited to be due to an infection either in the teeth, tonsils, bowel or elsewhere.

The second type occurs in middle-aged people and is called "degenerative arthritis." This is liable to affect one or two joints only and these are not symmetrical. In other words, if it affects the bones of the hand, it is not likely to affect the bones of the other hand, but may affect also the bones of the feet. The patients are overweight in contrast to the first group. Their general health is good; they do not have the anemia that characterizes the first group; their nutrition and skin are first rate.

The third type is known as gouty arthritis, which affects middle-aged people who have lived well. They are liable to be overweight, with the gouty deposits occurring particularly in toes, or in the elbows or hands.

In the first and third groups little lumps appear underneath the skin in various parts of the body.

Treatment Differs

The treatment of these three types differs somewhat, but the hopeful thing is that they can all be improved. The gouty type of arthritis, of course, must be placed upon a diet and this is the principal element in treatment. Diet does not play much of a part in the other forms of arthritis except that the overweight people of the first type should have forced feeding in order to bring up their weight, and the obese people of the second group should have their weight reduced.

Rest is a very important feature in treatment of the first two types. This means not only general rest in bed, but also splinting of the affected member.

With rest is combined judicious movements of the limbs, particularly to attempt to increase the range of motion of the joints. Every stiff joint should be moved through its full range of motion several times a day, either by the patient himself or by an attendant.

Heat is important in treatment; not only local heat but the use of a hot, dry climate with the facilities of a hot spring and alkaline mineral water. For this reason the climate of Arizona and New Mexico is particularly favorable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. W.: "I am a beautician and I am required to do quite a lot of hair brushing. My problem is that during the brushings I almost invariably give my patrons shocks. It's rather annoying and the fear that I am going to give a shock impairs my work."

Answer: Stand on the bare floor, not on a rug or carpet. It is almost inevitable that brushing the hair generates a little magnetic electricity. But this does no harm. Change your patrons' psychology; instead of saying "I'm sorry" when it occurs, say "This is good for you."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped "Postage and Return." Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, will send you "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific.

YESTERDAY: Both Sarah Anne and Judith finally talk to young Courtney and he tells them he will be home in a few days.

CHAPTER FOUR

SARAH ANNE slipped out of the booth while Judith talked to Jack, but the eyes of the minister's daughter came roaming back to the animated, vivid face of the tall, slim girl. Judy was serious and she spoke quickly. Then laughter broke through the earnestness in her eyes and around her mouth. After that she was gayer, freer. Sarah Anne knew.

When the door opened and Judy came out she was smiling. "Sally Anne, you're lucky. Now, why didn't they make quintuplets on his pattern?"

"I'm not lucky. He's not fastened to me by even a piece of pink string." She caught sight of the colored cord wound in a ball on the drug store counter. "He hasn't seen me for ages, but he remembered your beauty."

"He did remember me?" Something shining, like awe and surprise and elation, made a rainbow in Judy's eyes. "You're not handing out packages from an empty larder?"

"Of course not. Who wouldn't remember you?"

And for the second time that day Sarah Anne felt small, unimportant, just a scrap of a girl with freckles on her nose, dark hair and eyes, and a nice disposition. A girl who played the piano for the young people's meetings because, while there were better musicians in the group, no one else could be counted upon to attend regularly. A girl who told stories to the children, in the church reading room at three o'clock every Saturday afternoon, because everyone else was too busy. A girl who called on the sick and shut-ins because she had a habit of bringing some sparkling comment from the outside world, they said, though she never knew why it sparkled.

She did not pause to remember, nor would she have recognized the description had she read it, that her hair was a blue-black mystery, and her eyes were so wide and so changing that sometimes people were frightened at their challenge and the tilted nose with its seven freckles was delightfully human.

"How about a soda?" Judith was saying, that odd ringing of bells in her voice.

But when the two girls were seated, she laughed softly. "I don't want to attract attention to the parsonage, but isn't that your young sister Corinne who apparently has fallen in a baptistry?"

"She dived!" Corinne's skirts were giving off a steady stream of water. Now she saw the two girls and came over to them.

"I won't catch pneumonia, really. It just happened. Bob Ferrall had ideas about life and I didn't agree, so he pushed me into the swimming pool at the Country club. You see, Bob wanted to elope tonight and I didn't. So he said I aggravated him. Now Ted and Melville are getting me some hot coffee before I go home."

Corinne was nonchalant and gay about her bedraggled appearance. Her yellow hair shone and her sparkling sea-green eyes approved of life, no matter what it did to her. She was a freshman in college, home now for the summer, and wherever she went a crowd of young people, preferably men, greeted her enthusiastically.

"Whom were you calling?" Corinne asked candidly. "Is the parsonage phone out of order or the working too well?"

"We called Jack," Sarah Anne answered. "He belongs to us—the older generation, you know. He's all of 24."

"Not a bad age for a man," Corinne volunteered. "You should

"—so he pushed me into the swimming pool," said Corinne.

have reached him sooner. With all the female dopes from coast to coast wanting his autograph, he'll run into snares. Any luck?"

"What kind of luck?"

"Strong words to tell your grandchildren. You know, the night of the triumph the intertidal young birdman told you he had to think of something silly to stay awake, so he remembered how you played 'Cap-Frog' or something. Well, I'll be leaving. The young gentlemen have the coffee here."

"I forgot to tell you the news," Judy said, still with that breathless catch in her voice. "Jack did use our engine! Made the mechanics change at the last moment! So it's all right. Isn't it glorious?"

"Of course, only Bing will win his thousand!"

"Bing? His thousand?" She looked bewildered. "Oh, that's all right. He'll never soar, so if a few dollars gives him joy—I think I'll take my ship up for a little while after all. Want to come?"

Sarah Anne shook her head. "I have to grade spelling papers. Let me walk home from the store, and you run on. I'll see you tomorrow, Judy."

She walked slowly. The branches of the tall maples met in an arch across the sidewalk and star-dust spattered through. Somewhere a radio played a song of love that didn't last. There were so many songs dedicated to transient devotion. Was there a reason?

The magic of the day was gone. Back in the drug store Corinne laughed her brilliant young way through the evening. And pretty soon Judith would fly toward the stars.

Sarah Anne stretched her slim arms. She could stretch her soul, she could give her heart wings, but she was earth-bound unless someone took her skyward. The minister's salary, combined, could no more than meet the needs of the parsonage. For a moment she wished she could afford a ship and fly above reality, and escape—escape from what?

Suddenly she wished she knew. In her room she undressed quickly. It was a vibrant, happy room with a single bed with a quilted headboard of flowered taffeta. There were no legs and no footboard. A gray rug, once used in the living room downstairs, covered the floor, and the draperies over the window seat and in the deep chair, matched the quilted headboard in a chintz. A low bookcase was filled with well-loved volumes, and there were a few fat lamps, a tea table with a brass tea kettle somebody had brought her from London, half a dozen flowered cups and saucers that matched a teapot, cream pitcher and sugar bowl, another gift from Judy.

Her desk occupied one wide wall. It wasn't really a desk. It was a long, low table which had stood originally in the minister's study until the congregation made him a gift of a real desk on his fifteenth anniversary of administering to them. A row of books marched across the back of the table, and a desk set, rose leather with her initials in gold, was there, too. Judy again. Odd how many things in her room came from Judith, she mused suddenly. That tall bottle of French perfume on the dresser, the crystal and silver powder and rouge boxes, the prints on either side of the fireplace.

Brushing her hair until it shone darkly, she thought about Judith. Judy, who was tall, lithe, free as the wide wind blowing, and generous to a fault. Too often men feared her radiant beauty, the assurance that wealth, charm, poise gave her. Once she had confided to Sarah Anne that she was lonely. It was soon after that admission that Bing Wells came to work in her father's factory.

Next door, in the slim steeple of the old gray church, the clock began to strike slowly, serenely, as though all its hours marched faithfully to virtue. From her window Sarah Anne saw the long hands silhouetted against the lighted face. It was twelve o'clock.

She heard a whir overhead. Judy was up there. Ah, yes, there was the ship. Judy flew, but she flew alone. Now she, Sarah Anne, who had no ship and never would have, could fly in an enchanted cockpit. A cloud crossed the moon and as suddenly the ship was gone. A little fear, nameless and the worse because it was, went to bed with Sarah Anne. It was with her after school the next day when Mrs. Courtney came to her room to ask her to drop by as she left the building.

But the eyes of Jack's mother were shining and her gray hair was waving around her flushed face. "I've some news that I think you might like, too," she said.

"Is it Jack?"

"There are any other news?" the woman laughed happily.

"No," Sarah Anne agreed. "None at all."

"He will be here at eight tomorrow night. Something seems to have hurried his plans."

At eight, tomorrow night!

RAILROAD FARE CUTS

THE cut on passenger rates in the East and South should send a lot of motorists back to the railroad ticket windows and persuade a lot of stay-at-homes to go and see their relatives. A financial writer says such a slashing of passenger rate structure is like cutting the price of steel sheets $8 a ton.

Rates east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, the most populous and busiest industrial area in America, are cut from 2½ cents a mile, coach fare, to 2¼ for hauls of 100 miles, and on down to 1.7 cents for longer trips. The drastic nature of these cuts is evident when the passenger remembers that for 17 years before the 1936 cuts, the basic coach rate was 3.6 cents per mile. Rates are to drop in upper Pullman berths, as well as coaches.

Southern roads also are preparing to make a 10 percent reduction in round-trip coach fares.

The most interesting thing about this "rate-cutting spree" is that the railroads themselves, which formerly resisted such cuts, are now asking permission to adopt them voluntarily. They seem convinced that in this field, under present conditions, they can make more money by cheaper service.

BOOKS ON SOUTH AMERICA

GROWTH of North American interest in South America in the last twenty years is shown by a report of the Columbus Memorial Library of the Pan American Union. The number of books published in England and the United States on Latin America has more than doubled in the last ten years.

Dividing the years 1919-1938 into five-year periods, one finds only eighty such books published in the first. In the second five years there were 172, in the third 257 and in the last 346 books on Latin America. One-fifth of all these books were about Mexico, our nearest Latin neighbor. In recent years, travelers and authors have been penetrating farther below the Rio Grande, and we are beginning to get books about nearly all the countries to the south. Within recent months there has been published a fine history of all Latin America.

This attention we now pay our sister continent is belated. Europe has taken a greater interest in that region heretofore than we have. It is possible, however, that with our American speed and thoroughness we may yet catch up in information and understanding, to our own great advantage and, we hope, to South America's.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a fine morning following the rains and found everything looking better than only a few days ago when drought threatened. Took the pup for a backyard stroll and then headed for the post, there meeting Dr. Courtright, whose hours at the federal building generally are different than mine. He all dressed in white. When I am dressed in white I am pleased with my appearance for only the first half hour. After that I look like a white wing after a hard day following the ponies. But not the doctor. Wish I knew how he does it.

At the Coffee Club did chat with Bud Harden and learned that Pickaway county has two more or more beagle hounds of the world's best blood, and that some of the dogs are beginning to attract the attention of dog show judges. The scrivener never followed the beagles in the field, but does know many men who do so and gain great pleasure thereby. I like the coon dogs on a drizzling night, but have not been out behind them for ten years or more.

Sweet music, an open-mouthed dog in the woods at night.

An orchid to Frank Lynch for his playground promotion. Success is moving up on that project, and a worthy project it is too. Frank has a real interest in youngsters, probably because he is so much of a youngster himself. It was only the other morning that Frank entered the Coffee Club all full of hope and then met up with Harl and paid a dime for his coffee. Within fifteen minutes Frank had become a one-man picket line in front of the "club", announcing in a loud voice to one and all "This place is unfair to coffee drinkers."

Ten years ago the Kiwanis club was organized in the ville. In the decade the club has done much for the community, and has a fine program worked out for the future. Here comes James Grubb, in from his farm out Ringgold way, and bearing a box of the finest strawberries I have seen this year. A mighty welcome gift to the scrivener. In the box only 24 berries, and it was overflowing.

Big ones, these, and mighty tasty.

Learned with regret of the death of John Warren, Kingston's outstanding churchman. We have lost some fine citizens this Spring. That permanent holiday, however, is slipping up on all of us. At Main and Court streets did see an only man escape death by inches twice in rapid succession. He started across Court, the light being with him in the beginning. Then the light changed and a car headed North almost struck him. He dodged and almost was run down by a big south-bound truck. Wonder whether motorists ever will learn that the pedestrian has the right of way under such circumstances as those related. And that if the man had been run down that the motorist, if authorities had so decreed, might have been tried for manslaughter. And, too, nothing makes me quite so angry as the motorists who zip around corners without consideration for pedestrians. If the motorist has the green light, so has the pedestrian, and if the motorist turns the pedestrian still has the right of way. Darn 'em, why won't they learn that.

STALIN BALKED

WASHINGTON—One secret diplomatic move, hitherto undisclosed, sheds light on the failure of France and Britain to pull Russia into the anti-Nazi alliance.

During the height of the negotiations between Moscow, London and Paris, the German Ambassador delivered to the Russian Government the record of conversations between England, France and Germany in which the two democracies urged Hitler to attack the Soviet.

The conversations were held last fall after Munich. At that time, the British were confident that they had worked out a real peace pact with Hitler, and made discreet suggestions to him regarding his future moves in Europe.

These suggestions were very logical and based upon population studies. The British pointed out that at the rate Germany's population was increasing, it would be foolish to expand in the more crowded areas of southern or western Europe. The only area which presented real opportunity, they suggested, was the Soviet Ukraine.

The conversations were carried on chiefly by Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin and a known Nazi sympathizer.

WHY STALIN BALKS

Why Hitler did not accept the suggestion is known only to himself. But what is known, is that just as the British changed their tactics from attempted cooperation with Hitler to building up a wall around him, and just as they were beseeching Stalin to join this wall, Hitler dumped the Ukrainian correspondence in Stalin's lap.

It made the Russians think twice before joining with allies who only six months before had tried to wreck them.

NOTE—Another reason for Russian hesitancy regarding the Franco-British pact is the difficulty of making the Russian soldier fight away from his own soil. He will always fight to protect Russia, but getting him to wage war to protect England is like persuading a Des Moines ex-doughboy that he should cross the Atlantic again to save France.

DIET AND HEALTH

Work in the Clinics On Arthritis Cases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A LARGE arthritis clinic recently, in which I studied the patients for several days, I found that arthritis cases are divided into three types. Each of these types is likely to occur in individuals of different constitutional appearance and physical characteristics.

The first type is the infectious arthritis, which is sometimes called "rheumatoid arthritis." This may occur in any of the joints and is likely to occur symmetrically. In other words, it is likely to occur in both wrists if it occurs in one, or in both elbows or shoulders.

There is swelling, pain, and in the course of time a good deal of disability from stiffness, and inability to move the joints. The patients who are liable to have this condition are young, underweight, anemic, with glossy, atrophic skin.

Due to Infection

It is considered by the doctors whose clinic I visited to be due to an infection either in the teeth, tonsils, bowel or elsewhere.

The second type occurs in middle-aged people and is called "degenerative arthritis." This is liable to affect one or two joints only and these are not symmetrical. In other words, if it affects the bones of the hand, it is not likely to affect the bones of the other hand, but may affect also the bones of the feet. The patients are overweight in contrast to the first group. Their general health is good; they do not have the anemia that characterizes the first group; their nutrition and skin are first rate.

The third type is known as gouty arthritis, which affects middle-aged people who have lived well. They are liable to be overweight, with the gouty deposits occurring particularly in toes, or in the elbows or hands. In the first and third groups little lumps appear underneath the skin in various parts of the body.

Treatment Differs

The treatment of these three types differs somewhat, but the hopeful thing is that they can all be improved. The gouty type of arthritis, of course, must be placed upon a diet and this is the principal element in treatment. Diet does not play much of a part in the other forms of arthritis except that the underweight people of the first type should have forced feeding in order to bring up their weight, and the obese people of the second group should have their weight reduced.

Rest is a very important feature in treatment of the first two types. This means not only general rest in bed, but also splinting of the affected member.

With rest is combined judicious movements of the limbs, particularly to attempt to increase the range of motion of the joints. Every stiff joint should be moved through its full range of motion several times a day, either by the patient himself or by an attendant.

Heat is important in treatment; not only local heat but the use of a hot, dry climate with the facilities of a hot spring and alkaline mineral water. For this reason the climate of Arizona and New Mexico is particularly favorable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. W.: "I am a beautician and I am required to do quite a lot of hair brushing. My problem is that during the brushings I almost invariably give my patrons shocks. It's rather annoying and the fear that I am going to give a shock impairs my work."

Answer: Stand on the bare floor, not on a rug or carpet. It is almost inevitable that brushing the hair generates a little magnetic electricity. But this does no harm. Change your patrons' psychology; instead of saying "I'm sorry" when it occurs, say "This is good for you."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Abdominal Cramps" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific.

YESTERDAY: Both Sarah Anne and Judy finally talk to young Courtney and he tells them he will be home in a few days.

CHAPTER FOUR

SARAH ANNE slipped out of the booth while Judith talked to Jack, but the eyes of the minister's daughter came roaming back to the animated, vivid face of the tall, slim girl. Judy was serious and she spoke quickly. Then laughter broke through the earnestness in her eyes and around her mouth. After that she was gayer, freer. Sarah Anne knew.

When the door opened and Judy came out she was smiling. "Sally Anne, you're lucky. Now, why didn't they make quintuplets on his pattern?"

"I'm not lucky. He's not fastened to me by even a piece of pink string." She caught sight of the colored cord wound in a ball on the drug store counter. "He hasn't seen me for ages, but he remembered your beauty."

"He did remember me?" Something shining, like awe and surprise and elation, made a rainbow in Judy's eyes. "You're not handing out packages from an emptyarder?"

"Of course not. Who wouldn't remember you?"

And for the second time that day Sarah Anne felt small, unimportant, just a scrap of a girl with freckles on her nose, dark hair and eyes, and a nice disposition. A girl who played the piano for the young people's meetings because, while there were better musicians in the group, no one else could be counted upon to attend regularly. A girl who told stories to the children, in the church reading room at three o'clock every Saturday afternoon, because everyone else was too busy. A girl who called on the sick and shut-ins because she had a habit of bringing some sparkling comment from the outside world, they said, though she never knew why it sparkled.

She did not pause to remember, nor would she have recognized the description had she read it, that her hair was a blue-black mystery, and her eyes were so wide and so changing that sometimes people were frightened by their challenge and the tilted nose with its seven freckles was delightfully human.

"How about a soda?" Judith was saying, that odd ringing of bells in her voice.

But when the two girls were seated, she laughed softly. "I don't want to attract attention to the parsonage, but isn't that your young sister Corrine who apparently has fallen in a dizziness?"

"She drips!" Corrine's skirts were giving off a steady stream of water. Now she saw the two girls and came over to them.

"I won't catch pneumonia, really. It just happened. Bob Ferrall had ideas about life and I didn't agree, so he pushed me into the swimming pool at the Country club. You see, Bob wanted to slope tonight and I didn't. So he said I aggravated him. Now Ted and Melville are getting me some hot coffee before I go home."

Corrine was nonchalant and gay about her bedraggled appearance. Her yellow hair shone and her sparkling sea-green eyes approved of life, no matter what it did to her. She was a freshman in college, home now for the summer; and wherever she went a crowd of young people, preferably men, greeted her enthusiastically.

"Whom were you calling?" Corrine asked candidly. "Is the parsonage 'phone out of order or working too well?"

"We called Jack," Sarah Anne answered. "He belongs to us—the older generation, you know. He's all of 24."

"Not a bad age for a man," Corrine volunteered. "You should

"—so he pushed me into the swimming pool," said Corrine.

have reached him sooner. With all the female dopes from coast to coast wanting his autograph, he'll run into snares. Any luck?"

"What kind of luck?" "Strong words to tell your grandchildren. You know, the night of the triumph the intertidal young birdman told you he had to think of something silly to stay awake, so he remembered how you played leap-frog or something. Well, I'll be leaving. The young gentlemen have the coffee there."

"I forgot to tell you the news," Judy said, still with that breathless catch in her voice. "Jack did use our engine! Made the mechanics change at the last moment! So it's all right. Isn't it glorious?"

"Of course, only Bing will win his thousand!"

"Bing? His thousand?" She looked bewildered. "Oh, that's all right. He'll never soar, so if a few dollars gives him joy—I think I'll take my ship up for a little while after all. Want to come?"

Sarah Anne shook her head. "I have to grade spelling papers. Let me take home from the store, and you run on. I'll see you tomorrow, Judy."

She walked slowly. The branches of the tall maples met in an arch across the sidewalk and star-dust spattered through. Somewhere a radio played a song of love that didn't last. There were so many songs dedicated to transient devotion. Was there a reason?

The magic of the day was gone. Back in the drug store Corrine laughed her brilliant young way through the evening. And pretty soon Judith would fly toward the stars.

Sarah Anne stretched her slim arms. She could stretch her soul, she could give her heart wings, but she was earth-bound unless someone took her skyward. A minister's salary and a third-grade teacher's salary, combined, could no more than meet the needs of the parsonage. For a moment she wished she could afford a ship and fly above reality, and escape—escape from what?

Suddenly she wished she knew. In her room she undressed quickly. It was a vibrant, happy room with a single bed with a quilted headboard of flowered taffeta. There were no legs and no footboard. A gray rug, once used in the living room downstairs, covered the floor, and the draperies over the curtains, the cushions on the wide window seat and in the deep chair, matched the quilted headboard in a chintz. A low bookcase was filled with well-loved volumes, and there were a few fat lamps, a tea table with a brass tea kettle somebody had brought her from London, half a dozen flowered cups and saucers that matched a teapot, cream pitcher and sugar bowl, another gift from Judy.

Her desk occupied one wide wall. It wasn't really a desk. It was a long, low table which had stood originally in the minister's study until the congregation made him a gift of a real desk on his fifteenth anniversary of administering to them. A row of books marched across the back of the table, and a desk set, rose leather with her initials in gold, was there, too. Judy again. Odd how many things in her room came from Judith, she mused suddenly. That tall bottle of French perfume on the dresser, the crystal and silver powder and rouge boxes, the prints on either side of the fireplace.

Brushing her hair until it shone darkly, she thought about Judith. Judy, who was tall, lithe, free as the wide wind blowing, and generous to a fault. Too often men feared her radiant beauty, the assurance that wealth, charm, poise gave her. Once she had confided to Sarah Anne that she was lonely. It was soon after that admission that Bing Wells came to work in her father's factory.

Next door, in the slim steeple of the old gray church, the clock began to strike slowly, serenely, as though all its hours marched faithfully to virtue. From her window Sarah Anne saw the long handle silhouetted against the lighted face. It was twelve o'clock.

She heard a whir overhead. Judy was up there. Ah, yes, there was the ship. Judy flew, but she flew alone. Now she, Sarah Anne, who had no ship and never would have, could fly in an enchanted cockpit.

A cloud crossed the moon and as suddenly the ship was gone. A little fear, nameless and the worse because it was, went to bed with Sarah Anne. It was with her after school the next day when Mrs. Courtney came to her room to ask her to drop by as she left the building.

But the eyes of Jack's mother were shining and her gray hair was waving around her flushed face. "We some news that I think you might like, too," she said.

"From Jack?"

"Is there any other news?" the woman laughed happily.

"No," Sarah Anne agreed. "None at all."

"He will be here at eight tomorrow night. Something seems to have hurried his plans."

Kiwanis Club Observes Its Tenth Anniversary

80 Enjoy Program of Rhythm, Rhyme and Roses

Kiwanians and their ladies enjoyed an outstanding dinner meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club, the event marking the tenth anniversary of the club's organization. Tom A. Renick, the first president of the Kiwanis Club, acted as toastmaster on invitation of Virgil M. Cress, president. About 80 persons participated in the evening's festivities.

Dinner was served at 7 o'clock, following group singing, at large tables centered with red roses. The Circleville Kiwanis Club was organized in the Summer of 1929 and has had a successful history since that time. Events of the last 10 years in Kiwanis were discussed by Mr. Renick and by Fred White, of Columbus, who was lieutenant governor of the Fifth Division of Kiwanis at that time and one of the leading figures in the organization of the club. Mrs. White was introduced, also, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDonald of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Mooney, of Logan, Mr. Mooney being lieutenant governor of the district at the present time. He offered brief remarks in which he declared that he believed the Circleville Kiwanis Club to be the outstanding one of the Fifth Division this year.

The program, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bennett, followed the theme of "rhythm, rhyme and roses." Mr. Bennett first introduced Miss Elizabeth Reber, of near Ashville, who, accompanied by Miss Anna Schleyer, sang in a lovely soprano voice "I Love a Little Cottage," "Without a Song," "In My Garden," and "The Lass with the Delicate Air." Following Miss Reber's singing, Miss Margaret Patterson, of Columbus, a cellist, was presented. She played "Berceuse" from Jocelyn and "The Flower Song." Miss Reber played the piano for her.

Frank Grubbs, "poet laureate" from Good Hope, Fayette county, was introduced by Mr. Bennett as the evening's speaker. His contribution to the program proved of much interest, Mr. Grubbs reading numerous original poems, holding the attention of his listeners and winning their applause at numerous times during his appearance.

Following Mr. Grubbs' part of the program, Betty Scothern Dunkel, of New Holland, accompanied by Miss Schleyer, played two violin solos, "Melody in F" and "Gavotte No. 2."

Miss Mary Hays, valedictorian of the Circleville high school graduating class and winner of the Kiwanis Club key for outstanding achievement, was presented. Robert C. Owens, winner of the key for the outstanding boy, was unable to attend the meeting.

During the meeting, Dan McClain offered the report of the recent Ball.

After the program, members of the club and their wives were guests of Manager Joe Wheeler of the Chakares-Grand theatre at a special showing of "Young Mr. Lincoln," starring Henry Fonda. This outstanding film, which opens Sunday at the Grand theatre, was brought from Cincinnati by Mr. Wheeler especially for the Kiwanians.

Kiwanians and their ladies will long remember the tenth anniversary party as one of the outstanding meetings in the club's history.

Delegates to the convention, which is set for Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, will represent 10,000 local W. C. T. U. units in every section of the United States.

Call for the convention, announced by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the National W.C.T.U. declared:

"The world is distressed and troubled; wars are raging and others seem imminent; evils wax bold and defiant.

"The Woman's Christian Tem- perance Union is a body repre- senting a great moral force in this nation which now faces many serious problems. We shall meet in council to seek Divine guid- ance in determining the part this organization shall take in contrib- uting to the solution of these problems.

"The celebration of the centen- ary year of Frances E. Willard is our great privilege and focuses the attention of the world upon the principles she taught, and which are the basis for the work of the Woman's Christian Tem- perance Union. They are eternal. These principles shall ever guide us in our work for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic, and the triumph of Christ's Golden Rule in custom and in law."

Miss Lape Hostess
Miss Florence Lape of E. Main street was hostess to members of her family and a few additional friends Sunday at dinner.

The three course meal was served at small tables centered with dainty bouquets of garden flowers.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lape, and granddaughter, Betty Orher, Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dreisbach and daughter, Marjory, Arthur and Myri Lape of Circleville.

Kiwanis Club Observes Its Tenth Anniversary

80 Enjoy Program of Rhythm, Rhyme and Roses

Kiwanians and their ladies enjoyed an outstanding dinner meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club, the event marking the tenth anniversary of the club's organization. Tom A. Renick, the first president of the Kiwanis Club, acted as toastmaster on invitation of Virgil M. Cress, president. About 80 persons participated in the evening's festivities.

Dinner was served at 7 o'clock, following group singing, at large tables centered with red roses.

The Circleville Kiwanis Club was organized in the Summer of 1929 and has had a successful history since that time. Events of the last 10 years in Kiwanis were discussed by Mr. Renick and by Fred White, of Columbus, who was lieutenant governor of the Fifth Division of Kiwanis at that time and one of the leading figures in the organization of the club. Mrs. White was introduced, also, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDonald of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Mooney, of Logan, Mr. Mooney being lieutenant governor of the district at the present time. He offered brief remarks in which he declared that he believed the Circleville Kiwanis Club to be the outstanding one of the Fifth Division this year.

The program, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bennett, followed the theme of "rhythm, rhyme and roses."

Mr. Bennett first introduced Miss Elizabeth Reber, of near Ashville, who, accompanied by Miss Anna Schleyer, sang in a lovely soprano voice "I Love a Little Cottage," "Without a Song," "In My Garden," and "The Lass With the Delicate Air." Following Miss Reber's singing, Miss Margaret Patterson, of Columbus, a cellist, was presented. She played "Berceuse" from Jocelyn and "The Flower Song." Miss Reber played the piano for her.

Frank Grubbs, "poet laureate" from Good Hope, Fayette county, was introduced by Mr. Bennett as the evening's speaker. His contribution to the program proved of much interest. Mr. Grubbs reading numerous original poems, holding the attention of his listeners and winning their applause at numerous times during his appearance.

Following Mr. Grubbs' part of the program, Betty Scothorn Dunkel, of New Holland, accompanied by Miss Schleyer, played two violin solos, "Melody in F" and "Gavotte No. 2."

Miss Mary Hays, valedictorian of the Circleville high school graduating class and winner of the Kiwanis Club key for outstanding achievement, was presented. Robert C. Owens, winner of the key for the outstanding boy, was unable to attend the meeting.

During the meeting, Dan McClain offered the report of the recent Ball.

After the program, members of the club and their wives were guests of Manager Joe Wheeler of the Chakere-Grand theatre at a special showing of "Young Mr. Lincoln," starring Henry Fonda. This outstanding film, which opens Sunday at the Grand theatre, was brought from Cincinnati by Mr. Wheeler especially for the Kiwanians.

Kiwanians and their ladies will long remember the tenth anniversary party as one of the outstanding meetings in the club's history.

Delegates to the convention, which is set for Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, will represent 10,000 local W. C. T. U. units in every section of the United States.

Call for the convention, announced by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the National W.C.T.U. declared:

"The world is distressed and troubled; wars are raging and others seem imminent; evils wax bold and defiant.

"The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is a body representing a great moral force in this nation which now faces many serious problems. We shall meet in council to seek Divine guidance in determining the part this organization shall take in contributing to the solution of these problems.

"The celebration of the centenary year of Frances E. Willard is our great privilege and focuses the attention of the world upon the principles she taught, and which are the basis for the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. They are eternal. These principles shall ever guide us in our work for the protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic, and the triumph of Christ's Golden Rule in custom and in law."

The Number One Pest of Lawns

When starting a new lawn take steps to stamp out that Number One Pest of all lawns, Quack-Grass. If a single root stalk of Quack Grass is allowed to remain in the soil in which a new lawn is being started it is certain to "muscle in" on the new grass and prove to be a trouble maker.

Quack grass is a perennial, and, as shown in the Garden-Graph, it propagates itself by seed and also by means of fleshy, creeping root-stalks. If once allowed to establish itself it will soon overrun a lawn area.

When a new lawn is contemplated and Quack Grass is found to be present in the soil it can be eradicated by deep plowing, then waiting and re-plowing if any pieces have been found to have started growth again. Sodium Chloride, if used at the strength of one pound to each gallon of water, will also kill out Quack-Grass, but at the same time it will also kill out any other grasses present and the soil itself will not be productive for sometime after such treatment.

If Sodium Chloride is used in the Spring to kill out Quack-Grass, grass can then be sown in the Fall, or if the treatment is given in the Fall then grass seed can be sown the following Spring.

In established lawns Quack-Grass can be smothered out by covering with tar paper for two or three months. It also can be pulled out by hand, but one must be sure to get all the roots.

Contractors Top Cooper Team In 11-7 Surprise

The Lewis-Frisinger Contractors tossed a surprise into softball loop circles Monday evening by pounding out an 11 to 7 victory over the strong Cooper Oil team of Ashville. Last week the Coopers won a no-hit no-run game, but Monday evening everything that was tossed into the plate went sailing into safe territory.

The contractors jumped on Gochenour, Cooper ace, for four runs in the first frame and came back with five more in the second to clinch the ball game. Five Cooper errors contributed to the Contractors' score, that team counting three runs more than it had safe hits. Five bases on balls were included in the box score.

The Coopers did some tall scoring on their own part, getting six markers in the first three frames, but they couldn't overcome the big advantage rolled up by the winners.

Kimball pitched for the contractors. Dean relieved Gochenour for the Coopers after the contractors started to pound the apple.

GRAND JURY OPENS CRAWFORD MURDER INQUIRY AT THURSDAY SESSION

STABBING DEATH AND FIVE OTHER CASES PENDING

Toles, Accused Of Slashing Hocking County Man, Denies Guilt

Pickaway county grand jurors will meet Thursday at 9 a. m. with the principal case for consideration being the charge of murder against Lloyd Alonzo Toles, 37, accused in the death of Noble Crawford, 39, of Haynes, May 14.

Toles, recently released from the Lima State hospital for the criminal insane, is in the county jail, held without bond. He denies the murder of Crawford. Crawford's body containing 18 stab wounds was found in a pond west of Circleville within a few hours after he had been killed and placed in the pond.

George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, said five other cases are scheduled for consideration. Two are non-support cases, one driving when intoxicated, one auto theft and another a statutory charge.

Grand jurors are William Reid J. H. Helwage, Miss Mary Foreman, Mrs. Otto J. Towers and Oscar Woebber, all of Circleville; Mrs. Jane F. Hoover, Ashville, Ben Vause, Harrison township; Fanny Rector, Walnut township; R. G. McCoy, Washington township; C. E. Dick and Bernadine Caudy, Monroe township; Luther J. List, Circleville township; Isaac Boggs, Pickaway township; Kernut Dountz, Scioto township, and Walter Hedges, Saltcreek township.

NICKY ARNSTEIN WINS SETTLEMENT IN FILM SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, June 6 — Nicky Arnstein, one-time husband of Fannie Brice, the comedienne, was silent today on how much he settled for with Twentieth Century-Fox following withdrawal of his $250,000 damage suit against the film company.

It was rumored, however, that Arnstein, a resident of Los Angeles county for the last several years, would receive between $20,000 and $25,000.

Arnstein brought suit against the film company on the grounds that they had invaded his right of privacy in filming "Rose of Washington Square." He alleged the picture was a story of his life and depicted him as a more or less unsavory character.

FOUR JAILED ON CHARGE OF RAILROAD DETECTIVE

Four men were committed to the county jail Monday afternoon after failure to pay fines of $5 and costs each for trespassing on Norfolk & Western railroad property. The charges were filed by G. W. Stiff, railroad detective.

Those fined were John Henry Floyd, 21, and Richard Clyde David, 19, both of Williamson, W. Va., Leonard Kalkbrenner, 20, of McKeesport Pa., and John Sanders, 29, of Chicago.

PARKER AND SON MUST SERVE TERMS IN JAIL

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., June 6 — Ellis Parker, Sr., the once famous "country detective," and his son, Ellis, Jr., have no further recourse today but to serve their prison terms for the kidnapping of Paul H. Wendel according to their attorney, James Mercer Davis.

"There is nothing further that can be done," said Davis after the

MRS. Mae Hancock Ayer of New York, wealthy widow of the late Dr. James C. Ayer, is under federal indictment on six counts charging smuggling of jewelry, furs and other apparel. The smugglings, the charges declare, took place in 1937 and 1938. If convicted, Mrs. Ayer would face a maximum sentence of 12 years and a $30,000 fine.

19 COUNTIANS AT RURAL MEETING IN JACKSON, O.

Pickaway county had the second largest representation, Monday night, at a district Rural Youth conference held in Jackson. Nineteen from Pickaway county attended the meeting.

C. C. Lang, assistant state 4-H club leader, spoke on planning programs for rural young folk. Don Rehl, assistant county agent of Ross county, was in charge of the meeting. After the banquet and program, the Jackson Rural Youth group presented a program of folk games and dances. Jackson county had the largest representation at the meeting.

Those from Pickaway county were C. E. Blakeslee, assistant county agent and Mrs. Blakeslee, Emerson Sheets, James Sheets, George Neal, Harold Green and Marvin Dountz, Scioto township; Faye Solt and Gerald Solt, Walnut township; Maurice Jury, Saltcreek township; Wayne Brown and Leona Leist, Madison township; Josephine Wolfe, Jackson township; Hoyt Timmons, Nelson Warner, Weldon Leist, Doris Leist, Alma Rhoades and Irene Pontius, Pickaway township.

U. S. Supreme Court refused to intervene.

The elder Parker was sentenced to six years in a federal penitentiary and the son to three years on their conviction on charges of kidnapping Wendel and forcing him to sign a confession admitting the Lindbergh baby kidnapping.

Ashville Busy Planning Celebration for July 4

By S. D. Fridley
Phone, Ashville 79

Things were plenty busy in town Monday evening. Band meeting plenty of the kiddies were on the job and ready to go places now soon, with their organization making a dozen or so of the neighboring towns in advertising the Big Fourth doings at Ashville. The village council was in session paying bills and making arrangements to try for once, maybe, the oiling of some of the most traveled alleys. The regular Monday night meeting of the Fourth of July committees was very much in action with "full steam ahead." The session was an enthusiastic one with the best of harmony—real old timer. And we'll all be there each Monday night until the Big Day.

Those from here attending the Zwayler-Steward wedding at the Hilliards church Sunday were Dr. and Mrs. G. R. Gardner, Rev. H. D. Fudge and wife, E. L. Runkle and wife, Miss Anna Sample and Mrs. Agnes Riegel.

Will E. Arnold near Marcy, beginning with Tuesday will be a regular attendant as a Federal juror in Mell Underwood's court at Columbus for month of June.

S. C. Allison has returned home from Freeport, Ill., where he was the guest for several days of his son-in-law and daughter, Karl and Mrs. Kraft and their family of four children ranging in age from ten to 16. Mr. Kraft is manager of a "5 and 10" and he and his family have been at their present location only since the first of the present year moving there from Aurora, same state, where they had been located for several years. Mr. Allison said he was over in Wisconsin and Iowa on a sight-seeing trip and that territory is almost entirely devoted to dairying with many cheese factories.

Mrs. Prince Moore with Ralph Heise and wife who attended the funeral of Mr. Heise's sister, Mrs. Leah Heise Goodwin at Thomasville, Ga., last week have returned home, the round trip covering 2200 miles by auto. Mrs. Heise Goodwin had been a teacher in the Thomasville schools for a term of 18 years. She was a native of Lockbourne and spent her girlhood days there.

The Guy Cain grocery and meat store by the postoffice is no more. Mr. Cain and helpers began Monday morning removing the stock to their similar store at South Bloomfield. Mr. Cain has been here and in the community for a long while and is perfectly at home in the grocery and in meats knows 'em all the way through from puddin' to sirloin. Said that he expected to devote most of his time to the purchase of livestock. And judging from what we can get "on the inside" today, Jesse Kaiserman will, in a short time, occupy the room made vacant by Mr. Cain.

Dr. Sam Cloud and wife of New York City are here for a few days visiting at the home of his parents, John and Mrs. Cloud. Dr. Sam is employed in a New York hospital and at the head of a department with several employees in his charge. Mrs. Cloud is a registered nurse but since she became Sam's partner, devotes her time in their home preparing the eats and darning socks.

CHIEFS OF CROP PLAN PROGRAM IN CONFERENCE

A meeting of the community committeemen under the 1939 agricultural conservation program will be held in the trustees' room, Memorial hall, beginning at 9:30 a. m. Thursday. About 40 are expected to attend.

The purpose of this meeting is to instruct the committeemen on checking farms for compliance with this year's program. Paul Mattheas, secretary of the county committee, believed some payments under the program will be made the latter part of July. Checking farms for compliance will start after the meeting.

The meeting will be in charge of the county A.A.A. committee and Robert Miles, of Miami county, district supervisor for the A.A.A. There are 1,511 Pickaway county farms, including 201,182 crop acres, under the 1939 program. This represents 79.8 percent of all the crop acres in the county. The total crop acreage is 252,234. Last year there were 134,262 acres under the program on 924 farms. Payments in 1938 amounted to $182,925.08.

GRAND JURY OPENS CRAWFORD MURDER INQUIRY AT THURSDAY SESSION

STABBING DEATH AND FIVE OTHER CASES PENDING

Toles, Accused Of Slashing Hooking County Man, Denies Guilt

Pickaway county grand jurors will meet Thursday at 9 a. m. with the principal case for consideration being the charge of murder against Lloyd Alonzo Toles, 37, accused in the death of Noble Crawford, 39, of Haynes, May 14.

Toles, recently released from the Lima State hospital for the criminal insane, is in the county jail, held without bond. He denies the murder of Crawford. Crawford's body containing 18 stab wounds was found in a pond west of Circleville within a few hours after he had been killed and placed in the pond.

George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, said five other cases are scheduled for consideration. Two are non-support cases, one driving while intoxicated, one auto theft and another a statutory charge.

Grand jurors are William Reid J. H. Helwagen, Miss Mary Foreman, Mrs. Otto J. Towers and Oscar Woebber, all of Circleville; Mrs. Jane F. Hoover, Ashville, Ben Vause, Harrison township; Fanny Rector, Walnut township; R. G. McCoy, Washington township; C. E. Dick and Bernadine Caudy, Monroe township; Luther J. List, Circleville township; Isaac Boggs, Pickaway township; Kernit Dountz, Scioto township, and Walter Hedges, Saltcreek township.

NICKY ARNSTEIN WINS SETTLEMENT IN FILM SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, June 6 — Nicky Arnstein, one-time husband of Fannie Brice, the comedienne, was silent today on how much he settled for with Twentieth Century-Fox following withdrawal of his $250,000 damage suit against the film company.

It was rumored, however, that Arnstein, a resident of Los Angeles county for the last several years, would receive between $20,000 and $25,000.

Arnstein brought suit against the film company on the grounds that they had invaded his right of privacy in filming "Rose of Washington Square." He alleged the picture was a story of his life and depicted him as a more or less unsavory character.

FOUR JAILED ON CHARGE OF RAILROAD DETECTIVE

Four men were committed to the county jail Monday afternoon after failure to pay fines of $5 and costs each for trespassing on Norfolk & Western railroad property. The charges were filed by G. W. Stiff, railroad detective.

Those fined were John Henry Floyd, 21, and Richard Clyde David, 18, both of Williamson, W. Va., Leonard Kalkbrenner, 20, of McKeesport, Pa., and John Sanders, 29, of Chicago.

PARKER AND SON MUST SERVE TERMS IN JAIL

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., June 6 — Ellis Parker, Sr., the once famous "country detective," and his son, Ellis, Jr., have no further recourse today but to serve their prison terms for the kidnapping of Paul H. Wendel according to their attorney, James Mercer Davis.

"There is nothing further that can be done," said Davis after the

MRS. Mae Hancock Ayer of New York, wealthy widow of the late Dr. James C. Ayer, is under federal indictment on six counts charging smuggling of jewelry, furs and other apparel. The smugglings, the charges declare, took place in 1937 and 1938. If convicted, Mrs. Ayer would face a maximum sentence of 12 years and a $30,000 fine.

19 COUNTIANS AT RURAL MEETING IN JACKSON, O.

Pickaway county had the second largest representation, Monday night, at a district Rural Youth conference held in Jackson. Nineteen from Pickaway county attended the meeting.

C. C. Lang, assistant state 4-H club leader, spoke on planning programs for rural young folk. Don Rehl, assistant county agent of Ross county, was in charge of the meeting. After the banquet and program, the Jackson Rural Youth group presented a program of folk games and dances. Jackson county had the largest representation at the meeting.

Those from Pickaway county were C. E. Blakeslee, assistant county agent and Mrs. Blakeslee, Emerson Sheets, James Sheets, George Neal, Harold Green and Marvin Dountz, Scioto township; Faye Solt and Gerald Solt, Walnut township; Maurice Jury, Saltcreek township; Wayne Brown and Leona Leist, Madison township; Josephine Wolfe, Jackson township; Hoyt Timmons, Nelson Warner, Weldon Leist, Doris Leist, Alma Rhoades and Irene Pontius, Pickaway township.

U. S. Supreme Court refused to intervene. The elder Parker was sentenced to six years in a federal penitentiary and the son to three years on their conviction on charges of kidnapping Wendel and forcing him to sign a confession admitting the Lindbergh baby kidnapping.

Ashville Busy Planning Celebration for July 4

By S. D. Fridley
Phone, Ashville 79

Things were plenty busy in town Monday evening. Band meeting plenty of the kiddies were on the job and ready to go places now soon, with their organization making a dozen or so of the neighboring towns in advertising the Big Fourth doings at Ashville. The village council was in session paying bills and making arrangements to try for once, maybe, the oiling of some of the most traveled alleys. The regular Monday night meeting of the Fourth of July committees was very much in action with "full steam ahead." The session was an enthusiastic one with the best of harmony—real old timer. And we'll all be there each Monday night until the Big Day.

Those from here attending the Zwyer-Steward wedding at the Hilliards church Sunday were Dr. and Mrs. G. R. Gardner, Rev. H. D. Fudge and wife, E. L. Runkle and wife, Miss Anna Sample and Mrs. Agnes Riegel.

Will E. Arnold near Marcy, beginning with Tuesday will be a regular attendant as a Federal juror in Mell Underwood's court at Columbus for month of June.

S. C. Allison has returned home from Freeport, Ill., where he was the guest for several days of his son-in-law and daughter, Karl and Mrs. Kraft and their family of four children ranging in age from ten to 16. Mr. Kraft is manager of a "5 and 10" and he and his family have been at their present location only since the first of the present year moving there from Aurora, same state, where they had been located for several years. Mr. Allison said he was over in Wisconsin and Iowa on a sight-seeing trip and that territory is almost entirely devoted to dairying with many cheese factories.

Mrs. Prince Moore with Ralph Heise and wife who attended the funeral of Mr. Heise's sister, Mrs. Leah Heise Goodwin at Thomasville, Ga., last week have returned home, the round trip covering 2200 miles by auto. Mrs. Heise Goodwin had been a teacher in the Thomasville schools for a term of 18 years. She was a native of Lockbourne and spent her girlhood days there.

The Guy Cain grocery and meat store by the postoffice is no more. Mr. Cain and helpers began Monday morning removing the stock to their similar store at South Bloomfield. Mr. Cain has been here and in the community for a long while and is perfectly at home in the grocery and in meats knows 'em all the way through from puddin' to sirloin. Said that he expected to devote most of his time to the purchase of livestock. And judging from what we can get "on the inside" today, Jesse Kaiserman will, in a short time, occupy the room made vacant by Mr. Cain.

Dr. Sam Cloud and wife of New York City are here for a few days visiting at the home of his parents, John and Mrs. Cloud. Dr. Sam is employed in a New York hospital and at the head of a department with several employees in his charge. Mrs. Cloud is a registered nurse but since she became Sam's partner, devotes her time in their home preparing the eats and darning socks.
